Sun Cycle in Sagittarius 2019 Jupiter Meets a Paradox

The season of celebration arrives now -- aligned with the qualities of Sagittarius, emphasizing the potential for generosity, mirth and good will. It's truly a time to express gratitude and to embrace both the commonalities and the diversity of humanity's many cultural expressions. As you might guess, there are cycles coming into focus (and some continuing) that draw our attention to the path forward.

Yes, the Conjunction of Saturn and Pluto in Capricorn continues to strengthen as it marches forward, and we are likely to see many of the most significant manifestations of this energetic pairing over the next couple of months. It's a Battle of the Titans, drawing our attention to the many ways power makes itself known, and marks a time to measure our progress in the test we mere mortals face when it comes to wielding our own power. Abuses will continue to come to the surface, all part of the healing of the wounds that need to be addressed. It's quite clear that, over the centuries past, our cultural "norms" have allowed misuse, influence, or position to assert control to step outside the bounds of our higher principles, essentially taking away the rights of others. These things are showing up in our personal lives, too, since such cycles operate much like the "cosmic soup" we're all experiencing. One consistent question continues to be: "What shall we do when these old (and sometimes current) wounds cry to be addressed?" It is a time for honesty and clarity. We are, through our choices and actions, shaping our destiny.

When the Sun shifts its focus into Sagittarius on November 22nd (10:00 AM EST), we begin a 30-day period of aspiration and optimism. Freedom is the watchword of Sagittarius, and will likely help to define our hopes and dreams during this cycle. Sagittarius is connected to the worlds of academia and the law, and these areas may gain special notice now. The positive results from doing the right thing can be strongly emphasized. Truth can become especially important. To further understand this cycle, let's look to the time the Sun in Sagittarius begins. That chart shows at least two cycles of interest that add a more creative thrust. These added influences will further define priorities for the Sun in Sagittarius period.

These are the most immediate shorter cycles: First Venus and Jupiter are joining together from November 22nd - 25th, marking a period to show what we hold in our hearts. It's a time to reach out and take action based upon your values, and to define what you expect -- of yourself and others. Venus-conjunct-Jupiter sparks high hopes and vision for a bright today and better tomorrow. Yet there's a shift on November 25th when Venus enters Capricorn -- quite a contrast to Venus-Jupiter, with a more conservative attitude emerging on both the relationship and the economic fronts. To add just a bit of spice to the picture, action-packed Mars is in a challenge with revolutionary Uranus from November 21st - 27th. It's almost impossible to stand on the sidelines under this influence, and there's a wild-card effect from Uranus that reminds us that the outcome and circumstances may be completely unexpected. On the national and global front, politics can be rather dicey, and revolutions or conflicts may have unanticipated consequences. The key phrase is: "Expect the unexpected."

When the New Moon in Sagittarius emerges on November 26th (10:06 AM EST), fresh energy is unleashed, and momentum may increase. It's definitely easier to move forward and experience more success. This brings an extra dash of confidence, and communication may also be more open. Creative ideas take the lead from November 26th-28th, thanks to mental Mercury and compassionate Neptune traveling in harmony. Also, from November 26th-29th, a few surprises in the love department are likely while Venus is sparked by harmonious connections with both Mars and Uranus. Searching for love? Look up. It might be right in front of you! For those of you watching your finances and investments, these can be positive days for successful financial actions.

A major dynamic change takes place December 2nd, when jovial Jupiter enters Capricorn for its year-long trek that ends December 20th, 2020. Jupiter's energy is all about expansion and growth, and the sign influencing Jupiter shows how such expansion is likely to come about. Jupiter is not nearly as free-flowing when restrained by the qualities of Capricorn. Conservative and practical options require Jupiter to think more about cause and effect. This period can be rather frustrating to those who like to see instant results. But results will happen, and many times, very good and lasting results occur when harnessing the better potentials of this cycle.

Motivating factors also become rather significant. If greed is at the core, the free-flowing qualities of Jupiter are more likely to be stifled. Allowing judgment of others to take over can shut down confidence and optimism. Self-pity does not work well now, either. Let's keep it simple. I give you one word: Work. Jupiter-in-Capricorn rewards hard work, diligence, discipline, and responsibility. It's a time when you may become much more aware of the costs of the good life. And just because there's work involved, do not forget about other qualities that feed Jupiter, like gratitude. It just may be more difficult to show gratitude and generosity. So watch for little drops of resentment that might dampen your exercise in gratitude. Be grateful anyway.

You may feel a sense of anxiety resulting from being misled or deceived while the Sun's light is potentially distorted by Neptune's foggy energy from December 7th-9th. This can be a good time to get away from the hustle and bustle, enjoy your favorite escapes, or volunteer for a special charitable event. But it's not the best time to hammer out details of contracts or business negotiations, since those in positions of power might not be honest about their intentions. Gather facts when you can. Listen to your intuition, but also look for the facts before a final action.

Several fast-moving cycles occur around the time of the Gemini Full Moon on December 12th. Put some effort into your "vision board", affirmations, hopes and goals, from December 10th - 13th, while Mars and Neptune are in a healthy connection, marking a time to initiate plans or activate an important dream for your future. With Venus gaining in power thanks to conjunctions with both Saturn and Pluto, this can be an excellent time to trust your visionary capacities while also attracting others and circumstances that will fortify the foundation for these desires. While relationships can be tested during these few days, there's an even greater potential for healing heart-centered wounds.

Not a particularly long cycle, yet an important one, Jupiter trine Uranus peaks on December 15th. Lasting from December 9th to 21st, the potentials for good fortune and generosity can expand. Reach out! A period of high inspiration, it's time to try something different. Spontaneity can lead to rewarding results. An excellent time to join together with others who share your ideals and values, it can be a potent time for political action. Yet it can be even more powerful in your personal life, when working together with those who share the circle of your life to build toward the future can be like creating magic. After all, we do make our own magic, however you think about it. What a lovely time to come together and share your most cherished hopes for a brighter future.

Just a heads up: On the horizon, a "Christmas" Solar Eclipse! Occurring December 26th at 0:13 AM EST, this Solar Eclipse in Capricorn marks a significant period on the world front, but it's also a key period when it comes to refocusing the best ways to bring healing and stability to our families. However you define family, it's time to be clear about who that might be in your life, and what role you have chosen to play. More ... next Starlight Message!
